

The Dinosaur Who Couldn't Roar

Once there was a dinosaur,
Who tried and tried, but couldn't roar!

He would open up his mouth real wide,
But all he found were giggles inside.

He couldn't be mean, he couldn't be gruff,
He couldn't roar, he couldn't be tough.

"I wish I could roar, the dinosaur said
Every night as he went off to bed.

And what do you know, one day he could roar,
He roared all day till his throat was sore.

But when he looked, he was all alone,
No one had liked his roaring tone.

Being tough wasn't much fun,
If it meant you were the only one.

So the next time the dinosaur went out to play
he took his roar and threw it away.

Then he opened up his mouth real wide,
He shared again the giggles inside.

So, if you think you need to roar
Just remember the dinosaur.

It's better to have a lot of fun,
Then to be the only roaring one!
